

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

IN the following pages we have attempted to bring together the raw materials of the history of the Jews in England, hitherto scattered among many thousand volumes or tracts, but some day, we hope, to be properly digested and suitably presented in artistic form. Our aim has been to prepare the way for this consummation, by arranging our materials in such a way as to make them most easily available for the students of Anglo-Jewish history—if any such there be. We have accordingly classified the entries, and under each class we have arranged them alphabetically or chronologically, according as we considered either method of arrangement more suitable, letting uniformity give way to utility. As so much of the work is already arranged alphabetically, and so much else is anonymous, and as our immediate purpose is to subserve history rather than bibliography, an Index did not seem necessary.

We have prefixed to the lists of books some account of the MSS. containing information on Anglo-Jewish history. Here we have been working on almost entirely virgin soil, which was scarcely even touched by the investigations connected with the late Anglo-Jewish Historical Exhibition. Where possible it has been our aim to give some short account of the contents of the various MSS., so that the student may judge whether it is worth consultation.

The bibliography itself is divided into three parts, dealing respectively with the Pre-expulsion period up to 1290, the Middle Age up to 1656, and the Modern period down to the present day. In the former periods we have endeavoured to collect every item of information that we could come across in the original sources. In the Pre-expulsion period this has involved a reference to almost every work of importance, dealing with the general history of England for that period. Hence we can only profess to give those items which are given in the indexes to the Rolls Series and Record Commission publications, the chief county and town histories, and the publications of the antiquarian societies which deal with the period. In these cases the entries are taken directly from the indexes in the volumes, which are unfortunately often too meagre. At the same time many other items are given, and in the case of the various series of Rolls published by the Record Commission (Nos. 129-135, 154-165), the references have been obtained by searching out the Jewish names from the indexes, which include considerably over 100,000 names. A few references are added to modern historians of repute, and Holinshed's entries have been given as a specimen of the Elizabethan annalists, who cannot however be considered as original authorities. Lastly, care has been taken to give as many references as could be found to the Jewish sources for the period. In a few cases where only a single piece of information is contained in a volume we have given it in full.*

We have been equally full in the entries relating to the Middle-age of Anglo-Jewish history, between the

* The student may be reminded that the majority of the Papers of the Anglo-Jewish Exhibition, as well as Mr. M. D. Davis's edition of the Shetaroth, issued with this volume, deal with the Pre-expulsion Period.

Expulsion and the Return. This period has till lately been regarded as a blank, but, as Mr. S. L. Lee was the first to show, and as our entries amply substantiate, there are a large number of scattered references to the existence of Jews in this period at all times from Edward II. to the Commonwealth.*

In the Modern period, since the return in 1656, we found it impossible to give facts scattered in isolated volumes, and our entries relate for the most part to books and pamphlets entirely devoted to various aspects of Anglo-Jewish history during this period. In two sections, however, those giving biographical details and information about communal organisation, we have departed from this rule, and have given every scrap of information we could collect on these subjects, which form the backbone of the recent history. Most of the works mentioned have passed under our eyes,† but in a few instances, the titles have been taken from bibliographical works. Where size and place of publication are not given, it should be understood that the book was published in London in octavo form. The date is at times omitted in sections arranged chronologically: in such cases it is the same as the preceding number.

The bibliography will probably be considered sufficiently extensive by most who consult it. Yet it includes only part of the materials we have collected, as in our opinion bearing on the subject. We have collected a very large number of entries on Christian

* A paper on this subject will be found in the volume of Papers issued with this work.

† A number of the rarest formerly belonged to the collection of the late Alfred Newman, now in the possession of Mr. Asher I. Myers. To these we have added the initials A.N. in brackets.

Rabbinic scholarship in England, on dramas,* novels, and poems written about Jews, on Belles Lettres written by English Jews and Jewesses, and on contributions to science and scholarship by English Jews, and on the "Anglo-Israel" craze, as well as details of Anglo-Jewish music. But these topics, though interesting in themselves, only indirectly throw light on Anglo-Jewish history, and would have unnecessarily increased the size of the book. Articles in periodicals dealing with Jewish subjects have been very fully given by Poole in his "Index to Periodical Literature," and it seemed scarcely worth while to print the few additions we could make.†

Lastly, the pleasant task remains of thanking those who have kindly aided us in some of the sections. Dr. C. Gross has been enabled, by his unrivalled knowledge of English municipal records, to add the items given in Appendix to Part I. under his name. Mr. Lewis Emanuel has kindly revised the sections relating to the Acts of Parliament and leading cases, to which he has made many valuable additions. Dr. Friedlander has been good enough to check the Hebrew items. We would also like to record the services of Mr. Dunn, Reader to Messrs. Wertheimer and Lea and Co., whose care has prevented many mistakes from creeping into a work which has been produced rather hurriedly so as not to delay the series. This unavoidable haste must be our excuse for any lapses beyond those to which bibliographical works, even when produced under more favourable circumstances, are proverbially liable.

We have by this work done our best to enable the inquirer into Anglo-Jewish history to quote his sources accurately, and to fulfil the Rabbinic maxim, "Say a thing in the name of him who said it." We trust we shall not be considered presumptuous if we express a hope that we shall be spared the fate, too often dealt out to bibliographers, of not being quoted at all. In making this request we ask but a small reward for a great labour—a task which has, however, been lightened throughout by being a labour of love.

NOTE.—By an inadvertence the numbers at the end of Part II., and at the beginning of Part III. overlap for seventeen items (280-296). If any of these are to be quoted they could be distinguished by a reference to the Part. In the section "Communal Organisation" some of the entries have no bibliographical references, as none could be obtained by the time fixed for passing the sheets for press.

MANUSCRIPT SOURCES OF ANGLO- JEWISH HISTORY.

BESIDES the extensive materials for Anglo-Jewish History that are given in the printed works catalogued in the present volume, there exists quite as much inedited in MS. form. Indeed, with regard to the period previous to 1656, the MS. sources largely exceed in bulk the matter that has already been printed. As these are gradually printed or calendared, references to English Jews are almost invariably found in them, leading to the conclusion that those MSS still inaccessible will be equally rich in new information. It was, however, obviously impossible to indicate all these sporadic references, and we confine ourselves in the following account to MSS. dealing entirely with details of Anglo-Jewish History.

The MSS. throwing light on the pre-Expulsion history of the Jews in this country are more than usually accessible to the student, being mainly concentrated in three repositories—the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and the Chapter House, Westminster. At the two former institutions the documents can always be seen; and at Westminster the Dean and Chapter have shown themselves willing to place their treasures at the disposal of a duly-qualified student, under proper restrictions and conditions. A short account of the various documents to be found at these institutions will be some guide as to their value and use.

A. PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. (Rolls House, Chancery Lane.)—The Jewish MSS. at this store-house of English history are mainly comprised of three series of documents, termed respectively:—(1) “Exchequer of Receipt—Jews; (2) “Exchequer of Pleas—Jews;” and (3) “Memoranda of the Queen’s Remembrancer—Jews,” under which headings the various rolls are to be asked for. A short description of the first series, which gives the receipts of the Tallages for various years, was given by M. Schwab in the Revue des études juives (XI. 256, seq.), and need not here be repeated. It may however be remarked that in the Record Office the rolls are numbered consecutively from No. 85, so that 84 is to be added to the number given by M. Schwab.

The second series of plea rolls, recording cases tried before the Justices of the Jews, have never yet been calendared, and a list of the terms and years to which they apply may here be given:—

The whole legal history of the early Jews in England is written in these 381 membranes, which include the names of almost every Jew who existed in England in the reigns of Henry III. and Edward I., and record almost every transaction in which he was connected. The more interesting cases should be selected, and the names occurring in the remainder tabulated, if a solid foundation is to be made for the early history of the English Jews.

The third Jewish series at the Rolls House is more varied in its character than the other two, as may be judged from the following short calendar:—

MS. SOURCES OF ANGLO-JEWISH HISTORY. xvii

Besides these series, specially devoted to Jewish matters, isolated deeds occur in many of the other series, some of which may be here referred to :—

- Inquisitio post mortem. 34 H. III. 50 Jacob Crispin.

Items relating to Jews occur, indeed, in all the great series of rolls, as can be judged from the references in the bibliography to those parts of the series already printed (Nos. 21-25, 129-135, 154-165). It would be a huge task to go through the whole of these series to discover the Jewish items, but it may be anticipated that as the Pipe Rolls and other documents are printed, fresh accessions to our knowledge may be anticipated from these publications.

B. BRITISH MUSEUM.—A full list of the original charters relating to the Jews, in the British Museum, was given in the "Catalogue of the Anglo-Jewish Exhibition," pp. 183-188. Besides these a few transcripts occur as follows :—

C. WESTMINSTER ABBEY.—This collection consists of 489 rolls, some of several membranes, put together in sixteen bundles, and numbered in pencil at the back. It will be useful to present a list of these bundles, and a short indication of the documents they contain.

- I. [Nos. 140-157] Small Rolls of various kinds, four of them (140, 145, 147, 157) giving transactions of Norwich Jewish Exchequer day by day in the years 9-11, Hen. III.
 II. [182-210] Sales of Houses to Jews.
 III. [202-206] Writs to Cyrographers of Norwich, Nottingham, and Canterbury.
 IV. [158-169] Sales of Houses to Jews.
 V. [1-11], VI. [12-104], VII. [105-139] Hebrew Shetaroth, all now printed in Mr. M. D. Davis' edition.
 VIII. [256-380] Writs of various kinds to the Cyrographers.
 IX. [211-255] Bonds to Jews.
 X. [381-391] Quittances by Jews to Christian Debtors.
 XI. [391-404], XII. [170-181] Writs issued by Justices of Jews.
 XIII. [405-420], XIV. [421-424], XV. [425-439], XVI. [440-486b.] Bonds to Jews.

A small number of these deeds were selected by P. C. Webb, and published by him in 1753, in his Question, etc. (see No. 192); but the Norwich Day-book, in Bundle I., still awaits publication. Indeed, the larger proportion of the deeds relate to Norwich: of the 267 deeds contained in bundles I.-IV., VIII.-XII., no less than 94 relate to that town. The remainder are chiefly from Nottingham, Canterbury, and Colchester, and are probably the results of the "scrutiny" of the archa of these places at the "Starr Chamber" at Westminster.

Besides the deeds contained in these three institutions, there are a few others elsewhere, most of which have been described by the Historical MSS. Commission (see No. 75), among which the deeds at St. Paul's, in the Ninth Report, are the most important and interesting. Besides the Oxford Deeds referred to in the Fourth Report, others are given by Macray (No. 95, cf. Revue v. 248), and by Mr. Madan in his just issued Rough Notes, Nos. 326, 687. There are besides some documents belonging to the Corporations of London, Norwich, and Winchester, which have not yet been made accessible to the inquirer, but will shortly be made known through published calendars. Indeed, as the bibliography shows, there is scarcely any publication of original deeds relating to national or local history previous to 1290 that does not contain sporadic references to Jews.

The Records of the House of Converts in Chancery Lane supply a connecting link between the Expulsion in 1290 and the Re-settlement in 1656. These are contained in 177 Rolls at the Record Office, known by the title of "Miscellanea of the Queen's Remembrancer—Domus Conversorum," and extend from 5 Edw. III. to 5-6 Jac. I. They contain the accounts, year by year, of the Master of the House of Converts, and include the receipts of the Converts themselves. Some of the latter are signed in Hebrew (vide 2-3 Hen. IV.). Among the names which may be found of interest are Philip Ferdinandus (41 Eliz.), Eliz. Fardinando (5 Jac. I.), and Yehooda Menda (20 Eliz.). There does not appear to have been any convert between 6 Edw. VI. and 20 Eliz.

Of more general interest are the State Papers also in the Record Office. As far as these touch what we have called in the following pages the "Middle Age" and the "National Movement for the Return," they have been exhaustively calendered; and transcripts of the Indexes, giving all necessary indications for the student, will be found under Nos. 209 and 293. These extracts have been prepared in the light of the most recent investigations, and they will be found to comprise such new names in Anglo-Jewish history as Maria Anthony de Verona, Mark Raphael, Carvajal, Coronel, Casseres, &c. Some Hebraic names have been hypothetically included, as likely to lead the student to further discoveries. The calendars of Domestic State Papers of the years 1641-1649 have not yet been printed. It is highly probable that they will be found to throw considerable light on the history of the events which led up to the return, and on the condition of the Marrano community which is believed to have existed in London at this period. The minutes of the Privy Council since 1542 also remain unprinted. These have, however, been searched—thanks to Mr. C. Lennox Peel—and one Jewish reference relating to the fate of Jacob Barnett (No. 220) has been found.* One of the printed entries referred to at No. 208 speaks of an important list of Jews, and an inventory of their estates, drawn up in 1542, at the instance of the Privy Council. The book containing these precious data has been sought for, but unfortunately without success. The "Johnson MSS." discovered at Hull (see Nos. 218a and 223), of which a few still remain unprinted, contain curious references to Jews during the Middle Age, and one describes a synagogue established in Hull, about 1600, on the site of a still older Jewish house of worship. The genuineness of these documents has been strongly assailed, and is very doubtful.

The British Museum Collection of MSS. affords a few important contributions to the history of the Re-settlement. The two petitions of Manuel Martinez Dormido, alias David Abrabanel (see No. 958), presented to Cromwell in 1654, are to be found in the Egerton Collection (Add. MSS. Eng., 1049, fol. 6). One of these is a formal petition to Cromwell to allow the Jews to settle freely in England, and it bears a memorandum which illustrates the Protector's favourable view of the question. Another interesting MS. (Add. MSS., 4106, fol. 253), refers to certain negotiations between the Jews of Amsterdam and Charles II., then in exile at Bruges, and incidentally yields significant evidence on the question of the extent to which Menasseh ben Israel represented his Dutch co-religionists in his mission to England. The Museum also possesses a large number of the manuscripts of Emanuel Mendez da Costa (No. 943). One volume (Add. MSS., 29,867) is a commonplace book, in which are a few memoranda on Anglo-Jewish history. Another (Add. MSS., 29,868) consists of a collection of miscellaneous MSS., among which is a list of Jews (fols. 15 and 16), hitherto supposed to be "a list of the earliest Jewish settlers in this country."* A comparison of the document with the burial register of the Bevis Marks Synagogue conclusively proves that the date assigned to it is too early, and its importance much exaggerated. It refers to the "widow" of Antonio Ferdinando, alias Antonio Fernandez Carvajal (see No. 923), and it includes the name of Dormido. It must consequently have been drawn up sometime between 1659 when Carvajal died and 1667 when Dormido died. From internal evidence it would appear to have been the work of a non-Jew, and, perhaps, had some connection with the threatened re-expulsion of the Jews, soon after Charles II.'s accession to the Throne in 1660. The Restoration was by no means so happy an event for the Jews as has been represented. So far from Charles II. having been favourable to them,* there is abundant evidence that with the inauguration of his reign the Jews of London were again reduced to the secret worship which they had followed previous to the mission of Menasseh ben Israel. The London merchants, who had then exclaimed against the tolerance of Cromwell, seem to have expected that the "Merry Monarch" would reverse the policy of the Protector in that respect. So much is evident from a petition on the subject presented to the King by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, in 1660, and the text of which is preserved in the Remembrancia of the City of London (vol. ix., 44).

For the later political history of the English Jews the archives of the London Committee of Deputies of British Jews will be found exceedingly valuable. The Board was founded in 1745 as a Committee of Diligence, to assist the progress of the Jewish Naturalisation Bill, introduced into the Irish House of Commons in that year. Its minutes and letter-books are intact from that date, and form a complete documentary history of the external relations of the Anglo-Jewish community for over a hundred and forty years. The Board took the lead in the struggle for Jewish emancipation; it caused measures, adapted to Jewish requirements, to be initiated in Parliament, and has been instrumental in obtaining the extension or modification of clauses in Acts affecting Jewish interests. It has also watched over and defended Jewish rights and privileges on every possible occasion. In assisting foreign oppressed communities, it was, during the presidency of the late Sir Moses Montefiore, and before the foundation of the Alliance Israélite Universelle, the leading Jewish body in the world. On all these subjects its records contain precious information. Of late years the Anglo-Jewish Association has shared with it, in amicable co-partnership, the conduct of foreign affairs. The minutes of the latter Society, and especially the reports of its Executive Committee—complete since 1871—offer copious data, not only on Anglo-Jewish history, but also on general Jewish history. In the library of the College at Ramsgate, established by the late Sir Moses Montefiore in memory of his wife, are some valuable letters and records relating to the foreign missions undertaken by that philanthropist on behalf of the Board of Deputies. These include the note-books kept by him during his travels in the East, and the original firman of the Sultan of Turkey, granting equal rights to Jews. The original decree, in the same sense, obtained from the Emperor of Morocco, in 1864, is to be found in the vestry-room of the Bevis Marks Synagogue. An important collection of documents relating to the emancipation struggle is in the possession of Sir Julian Goldsmid, Bart., M.P., whose grandfather, Sir Isaac Lyon Goldsmid was the leading figure in that crisis of Anglo-Jewish history. They are contained in two volumes, and consist principally of correspondence with Lord Holland, the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Duke of Wellington, Earl Grey, Sir Robert Peel, Lord Melbourne, Lord Denman, Dean Milman, Lord Wynford, the Earl of Auckland, and other influential personages.

From the year 1664 the MSS. relating to the internal history of the community are fairly complete. The only important documents of an earlier date are the memoranda of leases of the first Jewish cemetery, founded in 1657, which have, however, been printed (see No. 296), and some accounts relating to repairs of the Synagogue in King Street, Aldgate. These are in the Bevis Marks Synagogue. It is curious that the earliest document bearing on the history of the Jews of Ireland also relates to their cemetery, being a deed of conveyance of the burial ground at the foot of Ballybough Bridge, Dublin. This is dated 1727, and is preserved at Dublin Castle. With one exception the Minute Books of the Spanish and Portuguese Congregation are intact from the year 1664. The first volume is an interesting record of the organisation and early struggles of the community. The missing volume (from 1698 to 1724) was in the possession of the late Isaac da Costa, of Amsterdam, and was sold in 1861 when his library was dispersed. In it is contained all that the historian will require to know with regard to the building of the Synagogue in Bevis Marks, the oldest Jewish house of worship in the country. The records of the other London synagogues are also in good preservation, and are full of information on the organisation and social condition of the community during the periods to which they relate. The same may be said of the archives of the Charitable and Educational Institutions, a list of which will be found on pp. 160-167. Of the provincial synagogues and societies we cannot speak with certainty. The records of several extinct communities are known to have been lost or mislaid. It is to be hoped that the present revived interest in Anglo-Jewish History will result in some measure for the systematic preservation of such records in the future.

For Anglo-Jewish Biography and Genealogy—two branches of history which remain as yet unexplored—the manuscript materials are abundant. Foremost among them must be mentioned the Synagogue Registers of Births, Marriages, and Deaths. These have been admirably preserved, and, in the Bevis Marks Synagogue, are fairly well indexed. One volume of marriage contracts was unfortunately destroyed some years ago when a fire took place in the house of the Chacham (Chief Rabbi), to whom it had been lent. The earliest Register of Burials dates from 1657. It is apparently not the original register, but a careful copy of names and dates made direct from the tombstones. Its genealogical value is inferior to that of the subsequent volumes as the names are given in simple form instead of in the genealogical form usual in such registers. One of the Khetubah (Marriage Contract) Books (1701-10) has the following curious title:—“Registers of Marriages by the Right Rev. Father in God, David Netto Archacynogue.” An important register is the Alien Book, which contains the counterfoils of certificates granted to Jewish aliens by the secretary of the Bevis Marks Synagogue under the Act of 1803. It records the origin of a large number of Anglo-Jewish families; and the frequent occurrence of the phrase, “who fled from the Inquisition,” invests it with mournful interest.

Of actual pedigrees the only extensive collection will be found mentioned in the Catalogue of the Anglo-

Jewish Historical Exhibition (p. 31, No. 762), where a list is given. They number about sixty, and have been compiled from Synagogue records, the archives of Heralds' College, family documents, &c. Some of them are very elaborate. One of the Montefiore family contains nearly 1000 names. The Beth Hamidrash contains a set of elaborate pedigrees of the English Chief Rabbis, prepared by Mr. N. L. D. Zimmer.

761. DE SOLA, REV. D. A. and RAPHALL, REV. M. J.—
 ח"ה מסכתות מששה סדרי משנה-משניות. Eighteen Treatises from the Mishna. London. 8vo, 368
 pp. 1842.

Second edition (issued in weekly and monthly parts) 1845.
 Fragmentary translation of treatises Berachoth, Kilaim, Sabbath, Erubin, Pesachim, Yomah, Succah, Bezo, Rosh Hoshanah, Taanith, Meguillah, Moed Katan, Yebamoth, Ketuboth, Gittin, Kedushin, Cholin, and Yadaim, with brief indications of the scope of the remaining treatises. The work was projected by Messrs. Moses Mocatta and Horatio Montefiore during the discussions which preceded the Reform movement, and was executed for those gentlemen by Messrs. De Sola and Raphall, in 1839 (cf. "Biography of D. A. de Sola, by A. de Sola, Philadelphia, 5624). Subsequently, after the schism had taken place, it was put to press by Mr. Benjamin Elkin, a prominent member of the Reform Congregation, without the revision or consent of the authors. The preface, which was unsigned, and referred in equivocal terms to the Oral Law, was written by Mr. Elkin. Messrs. De Sola and Raphall by advertisement in the Times of Dec. 23rd, 1842, formally repudiated responsibility for the work; and the Voice of Jacob of Jan. 6th, 1843, was authorised to deny that the Reform Congregation had authorised its publication. An angry controversy ensued. Mr. Elkin issued a pamphlet (No. 765), in which he explained that no discourtesy was intended to the translators, and that their names had been placed on the title-page by accident. In the second edition, however, the names were retained, although the preface remained unsigned, and its obnoxious references to the "Divinity of the Oral Law," were neither expunged nor modified.
